QUANTICO FOOTBALL PROSPECTS

The football season draws close at Quantico with the prospects of a year that will be even more noteworthy than the last one. Football practice will begin August 15 and though the heat will prevent any strenuous work for the first few weeks much can be done toward straightening out the squad and laying the foundation for a smooth running machine.

The biggest item of news in the situation is the acquisition of W. W. "Bill" Roper, famous coach of Princeton teams, as head coach. Coach Roper will give the Marine team his entire attention for the first two weeks of the season and for the last two weeks. In the intervening period he will be present one day a week.

Coach Roper will be assisted by Lieut. "Jonnie" Beckett who had charge last year. Lieutenant Beckett has handled the team for two years with the greatest success and the coaching combination presented this year should rival any in existence.

The following men from last year's squad will again be in the line-up: Lieut. Beckett, tackle; Lieut. Whaling, end; Lieut. Farrell, end; Lieut. Geottge, full-back; Lieut. Liversedge, tackle; Lieut. Larson, center; Lieut. Sanderson, half-back; Capt. Skinner, end; Lieut. McHenry, guard; Lieut. Eldridge, guard; Lieut. Fellers, quarter-back; Cpl. Henry, half-back; Gy-Sergt. Kyle, end; Sergt. McMains, quarter-back.

The following new men will be available: Lieut. Bailey, last year center on the U. of Maryland team; Lieut. Ridgley, last year full-back on St. Johns College; Pvt. Thompson, played tackle on the freshman team of University of Pennsylvania; R. G. Hunt, tackle from Virginia Military Institute.

The first three games of the year will be played during the fall maneuvers. The hike this year takes the Marine forces to Lexington, Va., and here V. M. I. will be played on September 22. On the march back from Lexington to Washington, a stop will be made to play Washington College at Winchester, Va. On arrival at Washington the annual game with Georgetown will be played. This game should be very spectacular as the entire hiking force will march on the field, stack arms, and retire to the stands to root for their team.

Another important game of the year will be played against Michigan at Ann Arbor on November 10. Plans have been made to provide special rates for a large number of rooters for this game.

It is also planned to play some West Coast team on Christmas. If this plan goes through the entire Pacific Fleet will be present to witness the game, which will be played at San Diego.

One big game has already been arranged for the 1924 schedule. This is a game against Princeton. This game will mark the entry of the Marine team into the fastest company of the football world.

MARINES PAY TRIBUTE TO PRESIDENT

Marines throughout the world have joined in paying tribute to our departed Commander-in-Chief. In all posts and stations there have been the outward indications of mourning and the deep inward feeling of loss.

In Washington in particular the Marines, always close to the President, have been called upon, have been given the opportunity, to show honor to the President who is no longer among us.

Marine Headquarters ceased all activity from Tuesday noon until Saturday morning.

The Marine Band, "The President's Own," met the train bearing the remains and to the solemn and inspiring strains of the funeral march accompanied them through the station where cavalry and artillery were waiting to act as an escort to the White House.

Ten noncommissioned officers, chosen from those stationed at the Marine Barracks formed part of the guard of honor which maintained a solemn watch from the time of arrival at the White House until the procession to the Capitol.

The Marines of the Fifth Regiment headed by the Marine Band marched in the funeral procession to the Capitol, where two hundred other Marines from the flying field at Quantico assisted in handling the crowds of mourners who came to pay respect to the body of the President.

Leathernecks Stage Athletic Carnival—Actual Warfare Work to Condition Grid Team

A big athletic carnival in furtherance of the Marine Corps determination to be "fit to fight" on twenty-four hours notice will be held August 27-October 7 in Washington and vicinity.

The program includes two football games and a series of athletic events at Washington, and 300-mile practice marches, battle maneuvers and a historical pageant in old Virginia, representing the battle of New Market in the Civil War.

More than 5,000 Marines of the coast expeditionary force in training at Quantico, Va., will take part.

Campaign in Field

The exercises will be modeled after the plan of an actual campaign in the field, and all marches will be made under battle conditions. Infantry, light and heavy artillery, machine guns, automatic rifles, trench mortars, one-pounders, tanks, airplanes, anti-aircraft guns and all the other equipment of modern war will be included in the Quantico force.

Tactical problems, including all these arms, will be worked out, and invaluable field practice given the Marines in accordance with the policy of keeping them fit and ready.

The Marine force will leave Quantico Monday, August 27, and will march to Waynesboro-Stanton area, where extensive maneuvers will be carried on and a number of tactical plans worked out. From Waynesboro they will move to Lexington, where the crack Quantico football team will play the team of the Virginia Military Institute in the annual clash. This date will be Saturday, September 22.

Stage Old Battle

Following the football game, the Marines and the V. M. I. cadets will go to Newmarket, where a historical representation of the Civil War battle fought there will be staged. Thence the Marine force will march to Washington, arriving October 5, and on the next day, Saturday, will play Georgetown University in their annual football game.

A monster athletic demonstration will be held in connection with the game with Georgetown. The force will parade through the streets and give the people an opportunity to inspect the latest weapons of war. After the game another parade will be held. On the following day the Marines will be returned to Quantico on transports.

The campaign in the Virginia hills will enable officers and men to function on short notice in case of a call. The boys will be on the march forty-two days and will cover 311 miles.

RADIO FLASHES FROM RECRUITERS

For Recruiters—By Recruiters—About Recruiters

General Gouraud has come and gone. Houston will never forget him. Many nice things were said to him and about him and he came back with as many to the State, the City, the Second Division, the Thirty-Sixth Division, the Forty-Second Division and to the Marines.

Our Color Guard was out good and strong, they met the General at the station, escorted him to the hotel, and had breakfast with him and the reception committee. Were present again at the luncheon with the Rotary Club and in the afternoon led the parade through the principal streets of Houston out to Herman Park where they again displayed themselves on the stage of the Miller Memorial with such dignitaries as the General, former Lieut. Gov. Lynch Davidson; Mayor pro tem H. A. Halverton; General Hines, of the 2d Div.; General Hulen, of the 36th Div.; and many other men of note in State and National affairs too numerous to mention.—Southwestern Agitator—Houston, Texas.

Sergt. "Ted" Hinton, NCO in Charge of the Marine recruiting station at Waco, Texas, is certainly getting the city of Waco trained in the spirit of patriotism. On the morning of Aug. 3d when word was received there of the death of President Harding, Sergeant Hinton answered seven phone calls from people asking for information regarding the raising of the flag to half-mast, and lowering it in the evening. This also was an incentive to Hinton for some good publicity, so he immediately sat down and mailed Marine Corps cards on "Rules For Displaying The National Flag" to a great many business houses, as well as to City and County offices, patriotic organizations, and lodges throughout the city and nearby territory. "Ted" thinks that it would be a good idea to hold classes of instruction on The Flag, which is one of his great hobbies.

NOTES FROM PEARL HARBOR

(Reenlisted from Pearl Harbor Weekly)

The rifle team returned from Mare Island, Calif., on Tuesday, the 10th, aboard the U. S. S. Newport News. Every man of the team made a good showing which is a credit to the post. Sergt. Harry Weston, took second place, winning the silver medal. He is now on the east coast taking part in the matches there.

The members of the team are to be congratulated upon the showing they made and it is hoped that this time next year they will carry away all honors.

"When A Feller Needs A Friend"

An inspiration from the famous Briggs cartoons of the same title, by Sergt. "Ted" Hinton, U. S. M. C., with an apology to cartoonist Briggs.

With a crowd yelling at you "Oh, you'll like it"

As you reach the camp at Parris Isle, Where turmoil reigns, and clots your brains

And you try your best to smile. And you fail to salute some hard-boiled "Loot"

Then to the brig your way you trend, Bread and water, and no smokes for ten days,

That's when a feller needs a friend.

To a recruit company you go to learn to drill

Close order, courtesies, and the manual of arms.

With perspiration pouring down your nose like a gutter

You think of the happy days on the farm. With your hands all blistered from handling a gun.

And you think that the day'll never end, Your feet are blistered, and the Corpsman's ashore,

That's when a feller needs a friend.

But when winter comes around, and frost hits the ground,

You pull your O'coat up around your neck,

And at "chow" there's hot coffee galore, It sure is grand "By Heck."

Your money's all clear, you have nothing to fear,

If all of your money you spend. You've got a better home than millions of others;

In the Marine Corps you sure found a friend.

The summer girl is discarding everything for a coat of tan.

When shall you and I be welded? I am looking forward to that happy day as to the season of frozen pipes. We shall have a cottage of our own with hot and cold water, where we shall live as happy as two little faucets and yawn our lives away. I am hitting everybody on the head for a nest egg.

Darling, your eyes are like glint on new brass pipe, your lips are like checks ready to be kissed, your hair is as beautiful as dripping solder; but it is yourself, your own neat, first class self, that interests me most of all.

Darling, I admire you. Every moment I am away from you seems as long as the time I take walking around at drill. I count the hours and wonder when I shall be with you again. I lay awake nights loafing for you. You are my kit, my pipe, my serial number.

I am enclosing a bill of itemized kisses for you, and only wish I were going myself to carry love's message on my shoulders.

Till I look you over again,

Billie.

Rules for all Clerks, Company and Otherwise

Conserve air by eliminating some of the unnecessary conversation.

Conserve shoe leather by remaining at your desk; remember you are supposed to be a clerk, not a floor walker.

Don't acquire the saving habit to such an extent that you go back to your quarters with a pocket full of paper clips every night, just remember.

Just because you write on a machine, is no reason why you have to get light fingered.

If you feel that you must whistle during office hours, please whistle something German, so the O. D. will have a good excuse.

If you feel that you must take a typewriter now and then, please leave the desks. We can get new typewriters, but desks are scarce and hard to find.

As Benedict Arnold said in his famous Gettysburg speech:

Eight hours for them who work.

And many more for the Gyrene clerk.

Market Notes

Since the advent of warm weather the bars have been frequently raided but swimming ponds continue to attract young plungers.

Cows continue to be a good paying stock, and are much favored by the bulls.

The fact that dealers are still selling skirts short indicates that many women are not anxious to cover.

Curb traders report that scandal still continues to attract, but is subject to the usual fluctuation.

Fat girls seem unusually heavy with summer temperature and find few takers.

Betrothal bonds are accompanied with much pressure. Recent reports from matrimony, however, shows a desire on the part of many to close out, and get rid of their certificates.

Flappers still cause much speculation among adults, but young men's arms continue to open well and close firm, and there is a steady demand for small holdings.—Exchange.

John—What happened in Sunday School today?

Oswald—Oh, just another miracle.

It Was Granted

Sometimes it pays to be original. A marine on furlough wired in as follows for an extension and got it: "Nobody sick. Nobody died. No train wrecks. Everything fine. Still got a lot of money. Having a good time and going strong. Request extension."

Moral

No greater love hath man to show

Than that he lay down his life for a friend.

Semper Fidelis is the Marine Corps motto

And shall be till the end.

Be courageous and faithful in your daily work,

HONESTY wins out in the end,

You owe the best that you have to the Corps,

Remember! It has been your FRIEND.

OUR COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF

Words are useless in the face of the calamity which has befallen the Nation in the loss of its President, and the military services in the loss of their Commander-in-Chief. Words can only attempt to open our hearts and lay bare in all too forceless manner, what is contained therein. Words can only hint at the sentiment which inspires them, can only faintly suggest the thoughts which are running through our minds.

We all feel a sense of close personal loss in the death of the great American who stood on such a lofty pedestal but yet in such close and intimate touch with the populace. It may be that this universal feeling of personal loss is by far the greatest tribute that could be paid to our departed leader. Whether or not that be true it most nearly expresses our feeling. We have lost a leader, but more than a leader. We have lost a friend, but more than a friend. We have lost one who was in sympathy with the thoughts, ideals, and inspirations which actuate all of us who love our native land.

SPENDING IS AN INVESTMENT—SPEND WISELY

By J. A. MOYER, Mass. Dept. of Education

The spirit of progress is abroad in the world as never before. It has invaded the most conservative branches of business. Men nowadays wait less on necessity to drive them—they seek the better ways. They strive to qualify for the job ahead rather than delay improvement until threatened by the loss of the job they have. They scrap millions of dollars worth of structures to build better homes and better business houses instead of waiting for them to rot or wear away. Dealers in dollars have caught this spirit, and men no longer hesitate to borrow or lend vast sums to make changes for improvement. Individuals looking to the future borrow money and spend to the utmost to improve their mental equipment. According to Julius Kruttschnitt, master of one of the greatest railroad systems of the country, this is the most encouraging sign of our time. He says that his own success is largely due to ability in “spending money to save money.”

Money wisely spent is like power wisely directed. For instance, the merry-go-round consumes as much energy in starting and running as the motor boat on the river, but the one goes forward and the other around. We may make thousands of dollars and spend all of them, but unless we spend them intelligently we shall find ourselves when the steam is turned off—like the merry-go-round—just where we started.

I know of a college professor who says that his ambition is to have enough money to establish in some college a “play fund” for the legion of students who go through college missing many of the side issues, such as concerts, plays, and athletics, not because they do not consider these things important, but simply because they have only enough money to meet the absolute necessities and fixed expenses. Such a fund would surely be spending to save.

I do not pretend to suggest some set scale of rules for spending. Fortunately all people do not see alike, and what would prove spending to save for one person would not prove so for another. But I do say that we need to use all our resources—physical and mental—more thoughtfully and masterfully, realizing that each expenditure is a life investment. If we would get the most out of our investments we must see the VALUE of things, not just the COST.

WHAT THE MARINE CORPS DID FOR ONE MAN

We are all convinced that an enlistment in the Marine Corps is valuable and we are accordingly glad to have concrete examples of the results of Marine Corps experience. A striking example is reported by Sergeant Ira L. Hinton of the Southwestern Recruiting District. The successful ex-Marine is Herbert S. Beard who enlisted in the Marine Corps in July, 1918, and served with the 11th Regiment.

Beard, after his discharge, decided that he was a better man than when he enlisted and so he changed his occupation and announced his candidacy for county school superintendent (he had previously taught) and in the election he defeated his opponent by the largest majority of votes cast for any candidate.

Superintendent Beard gives evidence of the lasting impression made on him by his service in the Corps by his interest and activity in connection with Marine and ex-Marine activities in his locality.

SEA GOING NOTES

The Marine Detachment, U. S. S. Arkansas, has been stationed at the Marine Barracks, Brooklyn, N. Y., all summer, awaiting the return of their ship from the midshipmen's European cruise. The guards of all vessels in the squadron were placed ashore in order to provide more room aboard ship, and will probably be returned in September. Advantage was taken of this temporary shore service to send to the rifle range at Sandy Hook, N. J., those Marines of the Arkansas whose annual small arms qualifications had expired. At present writing, all but three of these men have completed firing for record with the rifle. Seventy per cent qualified as Expert and the remaining thirty per cent as Sharpshooter. Prior to departure for the range, all rifles were carefully calibrated and minutely inspected, and preliminary training was given in holding and sighting at the barracks.

The team consisted of Sergeants Cercey, Casey and Weston, Corporals Minor and Schwartz, Privates, 1st Class, Franke, Pederson and Rinard, Privates Heidloff and Peterson.

Yes, the men of the former 4th and 5th Brigades are going to have a reunion dinner. And they are going to do it up in real old-time style.

Men of the 117th Company and the Barracks Detachment are now on the range and will continue training there until the 20th of the month when they will shoot for record.

The Commandant of the 14th Naval District accorded the Marines the honor of firing the national salute on the 4th of July. With only a few hours' training, two gun crews were formed and the salute was fired in a most creditable manner.

The men who volunteered for this duty were: Corporals Campbell, Berndt and Larsen, Privates Wells, Perry, Harris, Schwartzbauer, Cherry and Pearlstein.

The swimming pool is now under the supervision of the Marine Barracks. Corporal Doyle, Private Wells and Private Appler are accountable for the police of the pool, will act as instructors and life guards, and see that regulations regarding it are carried out.

One-half the total amount of the machinery for the new laundry has arrived and it is hoped that the remaining half will arrive shortly and be in place.

Another Proof that Education Pays Big Dividends

By D. G. Baird

I GIVE the International Correspondence Schools practically all the credit for my being what I am today," declared H. G. Cogger, chief engineer of Station B, Detroit City Gas Company, Detroit, Michigan, when asked how he has worked his way up to his present position. "If I hadn't taken the courses that I took with them," he continued, "I'd probably be an engineer right now, drawing a salary of about $135 a month. No sir, I wouldn't take a thousand dollars for the training I got from the two courses I took with the I. C. S."

Of course, Mr. Cogger used the expression, "a thousand dollars," in the usual sense of a large, round sum of money. The remark was suggestive, however, and when his attention was called to the fact that his I. C. S. training has already paid him a great many thousands of dollars and that there is every reason to believe that it will continue to pay him something like two thousand dollars a year for many years to come, he and his interviewer set to work to estimate the actual dollars and cents value of his education. While it was impossible to determine this exactly, it was possible to reach some conclusions that were both interesting and instructive.

Mr. Cogger enrolled for his first course with the I. C. S. back about 1899; he doesn't remember the exact date. At that time he was earning about $1.25 a day. Had he not taken the technical training which he did take under the direction of the I. C. S., he estimates that he would have obtained sufficient practical training to have enabled him to become an engineer and to be earning $150 a month at present. But he did take the technical training and today he is chief engineer, at a salary of better than $275 per month. That is better than $135 more, isn't it? And he draws this each and every month, thus realizing a profit of $1,620 a year on his technical training. In twenty-five years's time this will total $40,500. But he has been a chief engineer for the past sixteen years. Of course his salary has not been this amount during all these years, but it has been considerably more than it would have been had he not educated himself. Add on just a few thousand for what his training has already been worth to him and we find that the money and study put into his I. C. S. courses was pretty well invested --worth, say, about $60,000 in actual money!

Justice to Auto Drivers!

"A. Walker, the last case on the docket. Mr. Walker, you are charged with obstructing the passage of an automobile by being run over while crossing the street. Are you guilty or not guilty?"

"Guilty, your Honor."

"The prisoner will stand!"

"I can't your Honor—I have several bones broken!"

"Ten dollars for contempt of court! Let the plaintiff tell his story."

"Your Honor, I was on my way to a business appointment and had only five minutes to reach there on time—"

"Wait a minute! How far were you going?"

"Four miles, your Honor."

Marines Recently Reenlisting

Thomas Gregory, 7-30-23, Virgin Islands.

Joseph A. Guaraglia, 7-26-23, Cleveland.

Palmer O. Jensen, 7-31-23, Quantico.

Theodore A. Fay, 7-26-23, Haiti.

Raymond E. Gibson, 7-30-23, New Orleans.

Estell B. Berryman, 7-25-23, Portland.

Matthew J. Young, 7-24-23, Spokane.

"And you only had five minutes to get there in and be on time?"

"Yes, your Honor."

"I see—you may go on!"

"Well, your Honor, this prisoner in the case started to cross the street just as I rounded a corner. He appeared confused and jumped out of the way of one automobile coming from the opposite direction right in front of mine!"

"Did he carry any light?"

"No, your Honor."

"The prisoner is fined ten dollars more for being unlighted! You may go on!"

"Well, your Honor, when I ran over him he became so jammed under the car that I had to leave my seat and pull him out, before I could proceed on my way."

"What did you do with him?"

"Well, your Honor, I always believe in being fair to a man even if he is in the wrong and although I was in a frightful hurry I dragged him to the sidewalk and dropped him there!"

"That was needless, but very considerate. The prisoner is fined fifty dollars and must pay the cost of all repairs to the automobile. In future, Mr. Walker, be more careful and not obstruct automobile traffic. Court is adjourned!"—Legation Guard News, Peking, China.

The Meanest Man in the World

The Fire Chief who never goes his fastest when we are looking.

The aviator who never loops-the-loop while we are watching him.

The man who hangs the sign "Full House" just as we have reached the coveted door.

The man who drains the last drop from the flask that is being passed around just before it gets to us.

The umpire who says, "yer out!" to the last man at the bat for the home team in the ninth with the visitors on the big end of the score.

The bandmaster who never strikes up his band when it passes us.

The cop who steps in and stops an impromptu championship bout between two street urchins.

Our dentist.

DO YOU KNOW—

That an instrument which automatically and accurately records the passage of any vessel over a given body of water, night or day, to observers who may be located on shore, has been invented by an Austrian? It consists of a small searchlight sending a ray no larger than a pencil across the space to be controlled, and a receiving apparatus at the other end containing a light-sensitive selenium cell. A passing vessel interrupts the rays of a searchlight, the selenium cell closes a relay which starts a bell alarm, or operates a recording device. It will prove an aid in catching smugglers.

That Thomas A. Edison says, "There is something wrong with the college system. I don't know what the trouble is; that's not my line. I can only judge by the results. But one thing is certain: the present system of education in the colleges does not train men to think. I am in favor of the college. That is where I get some of my best men. I have 60 of them now, but they are 60 culled out of 2,000. That's a pretty low percentage, isn't it?"

That persons may eat toadstools and yet live, thanks to a medical discovery now being perfected in France? A horse was immunized by successive injections of poisonous mushrooms. The serum made from the animal was tried successfully on mice and rabbits who had been fed the deadly amanita mushroom.

That a "round robin" is a petition signed by a number of persons in circular form? By placing the signatures in a circle, undue prominence to any particular person is avoided.
